Title	Dr.
Full Name	Charles Hwang
Academic and Professional Credentials	MD
Affiliation	Children's Hospital of Philadelphia
Country	United States of America
Short Bio
Charles Hwang, MD, is an Instructor of Surgery in the Division of Plastic Surgery at Children's Hospital of Philadelphia. He completed his plastic surgery residency through the Harvard Plastic Surgery Residency Program, where he also served as Chief Resident. His clinical and research interests include peripheral nerve injury and regeneration, trauma reconstruction, microsurgery, facial reanimation, neuroma treatment, and advanced reconstructive techniques such as targeted muscle reinnervation (TMR) and regenerative peripheral nerve interfaces (RPNI). Dr. Hwang has pursued extensive basic and translational research focusing on peripheral nerve biology, skeletal muscle regeneration, heterotopic ossification, wound healing, and neuromuscular recovery. His current research incorporates transcriptomic and proteomic approaches to better understand nerve regeneration and develop innovative strategies for improving functional outcomes following nerve and musculoskeletal injury.
