Short Bio
David A. Kulber, MD, FACS, is board-certified in plastic surgery and hand surgery. He is Director of Hand and Upper Extremity Surgery, Director of the Marilyn and Jeffrey Katzenberg Hand Fellowship, and Director of the Plastic Surgery Center at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center. He is also a Professor of Surgery at the Keck School of Medicine of the University of Southern California and at Cedars-Sinai. His practice encompasses the full spectrum of plastic, reconstructive, hand, and aesthetic surgery. Dr. Kulber's research focuses on stem cell-based bone and soft-tissue regeneration, innovative treatments for hand arthritis, advances in breast reconstruction, and the use of plasma to promote joint healing. He has received multiple research grants, published numerous papers, and presented his findings nationally and internationally. In 2023, he received the President's Lifetime Achievement Award in recognition of his 4,072 hours of volunteer service. As a co-founder of Ohana One, Dr. Kulber has participated in medical missions to Africa and remains dedicated to improving access to high-quality surgical care for children worldwide. Through the organization, he provides year-round education and mentorship to local surgeons in Africa. He is a diplomate of the American Board of Plastic Surgery and a member of the American Association of Plastic Surgeons and the American Society for Surgery of the Hand. He also serves as a board examiner for the American Board of Plastic Surgery. Dr. Kulber received his medical degree from the University of Health Sciences/The Chicago Medical School. He completed his internship, residency, and fellowship training at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center, New York Hospital–Cornell Medical Center, the University of Maryland R Adams Cowley Shock Trauma Center, Hospital for Special Surgery, and Memorial Sloan Kettering Cancer Center.
