Short Bio
Dr. Karp is a Professor of Plastic Surgery at NYU Grossman School of Medicine and Vice Chair of the Hansjörg Wyss Department of Plastic Surgery. He is Chief of Plastic Surgery at NYU Tisch Hospital and directs the Breast Service. He is committed to education and has been involved in training residents throughout his career. He is also Chair-Elect of the American Board of Plastic Surgery and President-Elect of The Aesthetic Society (American Society for Aesthetic Plastic Surgery). Dr. Karp specializes in breast and body contouring plastic surgery. He has extensive experience in all areas of breast surgery, including reduction, augmentation, reconstruction, and mastopexy. He also performs all aspects of body contouring surgery, including liposuction, fat transfer, abdominoplasty, and surgery after massive weight loss. His research interests include the use of 3D scanning to plan and follow breast surgical procedures. He was an early developer of the current 3D imaging software used by most plastic surgeons today. He has also studied various products for soft tissue support in aesthetic breast surgery as well as breast reconstruction. He has authored over 15 chapters and 185 peer-reviewed papers.
