Short Bio
Sarah Bishop is a Plastic and Reconstructive Surgeon at Cleveland Clinic specializing in microsurgery and robotic surgery. Her original career path was in music prior to pursuing a career in medicine. She obtained a Bachelor's degree in Music and a Master's degree in Cello Performance prior to medical school. She is now a dual board-certified surgeon, with board certifications from the American Board of Surgery and the American Board of Plastic Surgery. She completed a general surgery residency at Montefiore Medical Center in New York, a plastic surgery fellowship at Mayo Clinic, and a microsurgery fellowship at MD Anderson Cancer Center. She also had the privilege of training with the legendary microsurgeon Hung-Chi Chen. She is involved in advancing robotic surgery in plastic surgery and has co-directed the Cleveland Clinic Robotic Plastic Surgery Conference. She is the curriculum director for robotic plastic surgery and is involved in the ASPS Robotic Steering Committee. She specializes in breast reconstruction, paying special attention to aesthetic outcomes and minimizing donor site morbidity through robotic techniques. She also has a particular clinical interest in abdominal wall reconstruction following abdominal catastrophe.
