Short Bio
Dr. Sofija Pejkova, MD, PhD, is Professor of Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery at the Faculty of Medicine, Ss. Cyril and Methodius University in Skopje, North Macedonia. Trained in general surgery and plastic and reconstructive surgery, she has developed a distinguished clinical and academic profile centered on peripheral nerve surgery, reconstructive microsurgery, and hand surgery. Her fellowships in Vienna, particularly with Professor Oskar Aszmann, significantly shaped her expertise in complex nerve reconstruction, hand surgery, and advanced microsurgical techniques. Dr. Pejkova has authored and co-authored numerous scientific publications and leads research in peripheral nerve regeneration and innovative reconstructive strategies. Dedicated to education and international collaboration, she established the Skopje Flap Course with JP Hong, Marco Innocenti, and Jaume Masia, strengthening microsurgical training in Southeast Europe. She serves as President of MARM, the Macedonian Association for Reconstructive Microsurgery, promoting excellence across regional surgical education and patient care.
